If I participate in formal recruitment, am I obligated to join a sorority?

No, a lot of women choose to go through the recruitment process to meet people and make friends. Recruitment is a chance for you to visit Georgia College’s Panhellenic chapters and decide whether you would like to become a sorority woman or not. As long as you do not commit by signing the Membership Recruitment Acceptance Binding Agreement (MRABA) on preference night, you are not obligated to join a sorority.

Is there a GPA requirement to participate in formal recruitment?

Although the Panhellenic Council does not require a minimum GPA to participate in recruitment, each sorority may establish their own minimum GPA required for membership. If you have a question about a particular sorority’s requirement, please directly contact the chapter. Chapter e-mail addresses are available on their chapter website.

Do I need letters of recommendation?

While alumna are welcome to submit letters of recommendation on your behalf, they are in no way required in the Georgia College Panhellenic recruitment process. You should not feel at a disadvantage if you do not have recommendation letters.

What if I only want to join one specific sorority?

This is the most dangerous mindset for a PNM going into the Recruitment process. Being in a sorority is much more than Greek letters and having a title— it’s about being apart of a larger group of women who hold themselves to the values of scholarship, service, and sisterhood. Make a decision that is right for you, and please keep an open mind during the entire process.

I have withdrawn from the recruitment process, how can I get my money back?

Unfortunately, the registration fee is non-refundable.
