

Georgia College has an array of distinctive resources on campus that provide outstanding educational and cultural opportunities for the community as well as our students.

The Flannery O'Connor Collection

The Ina Dillard Russell Library established the Flannery O'Connor Collection in 1947 when the author's first story was published. Additional manuscripts were given to the library by Regina Cline O'Connor in 1970. The collection has grown and is available for scholarly research. 478-445-0988

The Paul D. Coverdell Papers

In 1996, U.S. Senator Paul Coverdell donated his Peace Corps papers to the Ina Dillard Russell Library. In 1999, impressed with the Georgia College mission, he donated his U.S. Senate papers. 478-445-0988

Georgia's Old Governor's Mansion

The mansion served as the home of Georgia's governors until 1868 and now is open for tours. Considered one of the finest examples of High Greek Revival architecture in the nation, it was designated a National Historic landmark in 1973. It is open for tours. 478-445-4545

Natural History Museum and Planetarium

Georgia College opened the Natural History Museum in Herty Hall in 2004, boasting one of the largest fossil vertebrate collections in the Southeast. The adjacent planetarium enables Georgia College students to make real astronomical observations on a simulated but realistic sky. The Planetarium highlights space telescope observations and is available as a field trip experience for local school children. 478-445-0809

Russell Auditorium

A campus landmark, the auditorium features Greek Revival architecture and an elegant décor. Seating up to 982, including a balcony, centered on a 1,000-square-foot stage and orchestra pit, Russell is the main performance space for Georgia College music, theatre and dance productions. 478-445-6542

Max Noah Recital Hall

Located on the third floor of Porter Hall with seating for 150, Max Noah Recital Hall provides an intimate performance space for chamber music concerts and small theatre productions. 478-445-6572

Museum of Fine Arts

The Georgia College Foundation purchased the Lucy Underwood House, designed by prominent Atlanta architect Philip Schutze, and converted it into art gallery space. It houses the University's permanent collection. 478-445-4572

Campus Theatre

Georgia College restored the art deco exterior of the 1935 Campus Theatre building and remodeled the interior for a bookstore, Barnes & Noble at Georgia College, to serve both the college and the community, a "black box" performance theatre and offices for the Department of Theatre. The theatre space may be rented for special functions. 478-445-2749

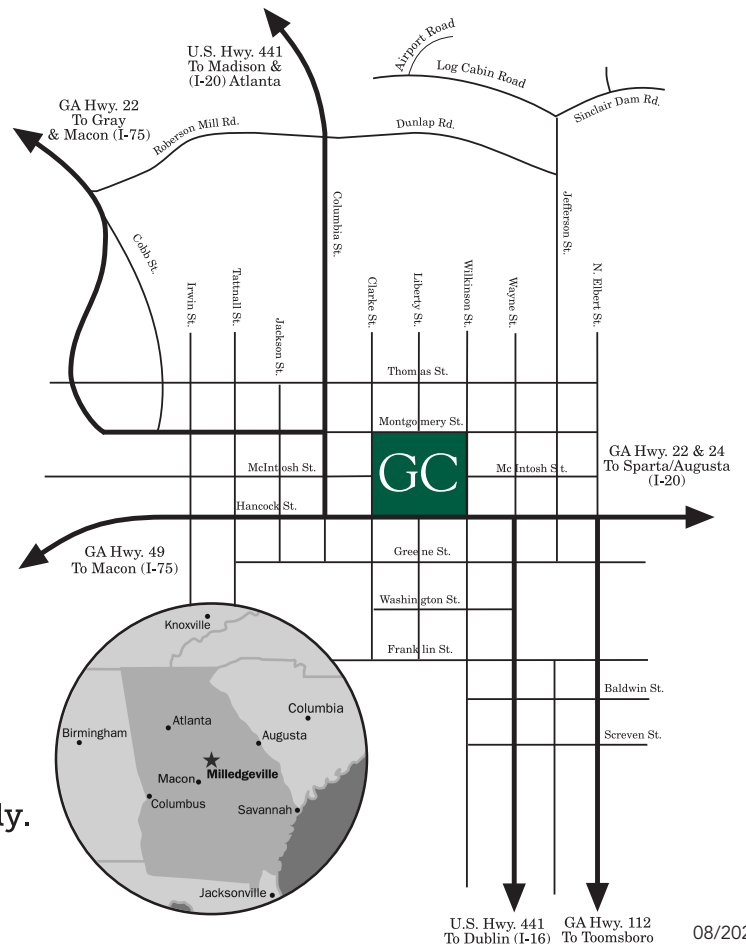

Centennial Center

Home to the Georgia College Bobcats, the Centennial Center provides 4,071 seats and can accommodate another 800 floor chairs. It can be used for large events, such as concerts, conference general sessions or exhibits. 478-445-6742

Sallie Ellis Davis House

In 2008, Georgia College joined the Sallie Ellis Davis Foundation in a partnership to renovate this historic house and open it as a cultural center. Fundraising and renovation efforts are ongoing. Recognized by the Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation, the house was home to Sallie Ellis Davis, a local educator who touched the lives of hundreds of African-American children, many of whom, as adults, formed the Sallie Davis Foundation. 478-445-5400
