

Dr. Carrie Cook, a Professor of Criminal Justice in the Department of Government and Sociology, earned her Ph.D. in Criminology, Law and Society from the University of Florida. She teaches courses in victimology, corrections, and research methods. Her research is focused on sexual victimization of incarcerated persons and fear of crime. Her work has appeared in Journal of Criminal Justice, Journal of Interpersonal Violence, Crime & Delinquency, and Violence and Victims. She was the co-investigator for two federally funded grants ($600,000) through the U.S. Department of Justice's Office on Violence Against Women. She has served on the University Senate, the University Curriculum Committee Task Force, and the Institutional Review Board. Her leadership service includes serving as the Acting Department Chair and as the current Interim Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. She was also a scholar in University System of Georgia's Executive Leadership Institute.