

Dr. Josie Doss received a Master of Science in Nursing from Troy University (2002) and a research doctorate from Georgia State University (2017). She has worked in women and infant services as a clinician and educator for over 20 years. Her areas of clinical focus include Maternal/Infant health and Forensic Nursing. Dr. Doss is currently an Associate Professor of Nursing at Georgia College and the Program Director for an $830,000 HRSA funded ANE-SANE training grant. Dr. Doss is an active member of Sigma Theta Tau and the Academy of Forensic Nursing and is an appointed member of the Forensic Nursing Certification Board. Research interests include obesity in pregnancy, transformational learning, and forensic nursing education. Dr. Doss has published in The Journal of Nursing Education and has been a podium presenter at a number of local, regional, national, and international conferences.